MESSENGER

St. Johns to Host the Annual Community Thanksgiving Service, Sunday, Nov. 24

As part of our continuing Bicentennial Celebration, we will be hosting Miamisburg's community Thanksgiving, joining with St. Henry Catholic parish, Trinity Church, Zion Lutheran and St. Jacob Lutheran.

One of the highlights every year is the all church choir. This year we're inviting the children and youth from all five congregations to participate. The adult choir will sing "Full Harvest" and the joint youth/adult choir will sing "A Song of Peace." A practice CD is available for the "Song of Peace."

We invite anyone and everyone who would like to sing to come to the one rehearsal that will be held Wednesday, November 20th, at 7:00 p.m.

The service itself invites individuals from the participating congregations to take turns reading short bible passages on our gratitude, gratitude for the: Gifts of Creation, the Gifts of Human Relationships, the Gifts of God's Presence, God's Hope of Food and Shelter for All, Community and Lasting Peace. Let Pastor know if you'd like to read. There will be no sermon(s), only Music and the Word.

An offering will be taken and divided between Miamisburg Helping Hands Food Bank, and Bridget's Path, the organization that provides inpatient care for drug exposed newborns as well as advocacy and non-judgmental support for families.

After the service everyone will be invited upstairs for cookies and coffee. If you are able to bring some cookies it will be much appreciated. Please invite family, friends and neighbors.

Pastor's Pen- Cultivating Gratitude by Playing the "Glad Game"

November can be a mixed bag of emotions for many. Fall is typically well under way and we may even experience our first snow of the season. Not everyone welcomes the snow. I'm usually one of those people.

November is also when we turn our clocks back. (November 3rd as a matter of fact.) The days shorten. We wake up in the dark and get home from work in the dark. Then there is Thanksgiving. Cooking the big meal and sitting down with family is either a favorite or a challenge. Trying to stay out of the weeds when avoiding difficult topics of conversation can be stressful. So far this introduction doesn't sound like it's about gratitude. True enough but hear me out. Holding gratitude in one's heart is a learned practice. And it is worth the effort. Here's an example.

I am not a big fan of winter. I prefer summer. So when I accepted a call to pastor a church in Minnesota, I knew I needed to shift my attitude, otherwise I'd be miserable for what turned out to be the next twelve years. In the past I endured winter, waiting for it to be over. But living in Minnesota I discovered that they simply switch sports! In the summer they are out hiking around the lakes, building camp fires, and riding their bikes. But in the winter, they gather in people's homes, concentrating on building relationships. And their sport of choice is hockey. I'm embarrassed to admit that that was revelatory to me. They were always grateful for whatever their reality was in the moment. It didn't take long for me to look forward to winter and to enjoy the other seasons with new eyes.

Gratitude is also a state of the heart as well as a state of mind.

As a child I loved the Disney film "Pollyanna." Part of it was filmed in my home town of Napa, California. The story goes something like this: Orphaned missionary kid with a heart of gold moves to a small town that is essentially ruled by her austere aunt. Pollyanna (played by Hayley Mills), with precocious positivity and determined gladness, changes her aunt – and the town – for the better. She even gives joy back to the fire and brimstone town preacher when she tells him about the 800 happy texts in the bible. She teaches an entire town how to be grateful! Here's one of my favorite dialogues from the film.

Reverend: The happy texts?

Pollyanna: Yes. Like, um, 'Shout for joy,' or, 'Be glad in the Lord.' You know, like that... There are eight hundred happy texts, did you know that?

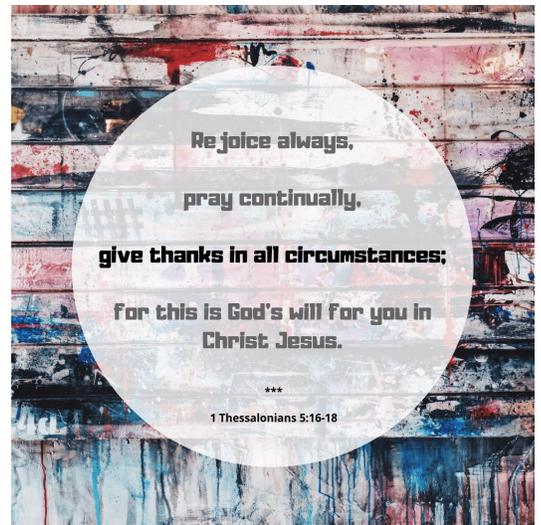

Reverend: No, I didn't know that.

*Pollyanna: And do you know, my father said that if God took the trouble to tell us eight hundred times to be glad and rejoice, he must have wanted us to do it.

As we enter the season where we give thanks for our blessings, for our saints in light, and everything in our lives, I pray we grow in our intention and ability to be grateful. I am grateful for you and for our congregation. You make me glad every single day.

In Grace & Gratitude,

Pastor Robyn
